

Veronica Karaman

Inspiring and mentoring true champions is the passion of Veronica Karaman's life and the reason she has become a sought after speaker, author, life-coach, and golf professional.

Founder of True Champion Coaching, Veronica draws from her extensive and unique background as a professional athlete, educator, and minister to reach people. Her approach is holistic, focusing on a spirit-mind-body approach, equipping people to grow through personal and professional development.

"I believe there is a champion in everyone and it is my passion to help a person look within to discover his or her true self, and to live powerfully from that place. It may be a struggling student who needs to discover the joy of learning, or a middle age woman who needs to get her sass back, or an executive who has everything but yearns to recover his lost relationship with his family. As an identity coach, my blessing is to awaken the champion spirit within leaders and future leaders to live an authentic, noble, strong, and redeemed life."

Veronica grew up in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, where her golf career began at age five when her father first placed a putter in her hand. She was the first female athlete from her school to receive an athletic scholarship to college. She enjoyed a stellar golf career at Duke University where she graduated magna cum laude with a degree in business. Veronica developed golfers for over twenty-five years and her professional highlight was playing in the 1989 Women's U.S. Open. She received two master's degrees from Regent University, in Communication and Biblical Studies, summa cum laude, where she developed a faith-based student empowerment program called God's Way to an A. Her claim to fame is teaching her elderly mother (recently deceased), to play golf at 85, and through the power of love, overturn a 6 month life-expectancy into 7 fruitful years. Her personal mother-daughter journey has inspired her to help senior women re-discover themselves through her coaching program, The Second Blossoming.

Veronica is available for key-note presentations, workshops, seminars, and custom-designed retreats.

Veronica lives in Pinehurst, North Carolina.
